Return of the Red Brush Forums (including the Classified Ads)

As promised, the Red Brush discussion forums have been resurrected, but in a new and much more powerful format. Just a short list of new features:

- Posts may now include photographs and hyperlinks, so you can post pictures of your items for sale or links to additional information, just like eBay. (You might want to consider this if you're going to bring a big-ticket item to the February auction, and want to give it some advance publicity.)
- The forum software also supports photo galleries if you want to post photos from your match.
- An online calendar now has the complete schedule of club meetings and range events, and may be modified in real time by match directors and/or their designees.
- You can subscribe to individual message threads, entire forums, or the range schedule calendar, so that any new entries in any of these areas will show up in your email, with a hyperlink taking you directly to that message or calendar entry in case you want to respond.

All the usual stuff is there as well, including personal photos of yourself and/or avatars to be displayed with your posted messages, smileys, etc. Join the forums by clicking on the "Discussion Forums" link at www.redbrush.org, and then click on the "Register" link once you enter the forums area.
